

Pescara Airport

Pescara Airport (IATA:PSR, ICAO:LIBP), it's identified as 'Aeroporto Internazionale s'Abruzzo' "Pasquale Liberi". It's an Italian airport, used for civil and military flights.

It was built in 1917 after the bombing from k.u.k. Luftfahrtruppen over the city. At first it was only used for national flights (Pescara- Roma Urbe) but it was connected with most important cities in Italy.

On the 1^o february 1979, the airport was closed by ANPAC, an Italian association of pilots, for the installation of the ILS (Instrument landing system). Finally in 1983, it was operative again.
